R. R.'s Plight Placed Faithful Bulldog On Own Doorstep by Committee's Report

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Railroad managers found today that the responsibility for the financial plight of America's $29,000,000,000 rail system had been placed squarely on their own doorsteps by the report of the national transportation committee.

This non-partisan committee, which conducted a sweeping investigation of the transportation problem at the behest of savings banks, insurance companies and other large investors, urged drastic measures toward consolidation and elimination of wasteful competition.

"It has been estimated on good authority," said the report, "that several hundred million dollars, or enough to pay interest on a large part of the outstanding railroad bonds, can be saved."

The committee found some justice in railroads' complaint that they have been hampered by inept regulation, but reported a "tendency to over-emphasize this argument."

Declaring regulation has "left something to be desired," the report added: "The railroads should do much that they have not done to improve their condition without any government help at all. They should be promptly freed of all unnecessary restrictions on the doing of it."

"It has been estimated that less than a 20 per cent increase in earnings would put most of them on an earning basis. In view of the narrowness of this margin of loss, and the very great savings possible in railroad operation, we regard the outlook as far from hopeless."

With the perfection of regulation, and the appearance of competing forms of transport, the committee held the government should abandon its old policy of fostering artificial competition among the railroads.

Furthermore, the committee said government assumption of "all or part of the costs of inefficient competing transport as a defense against monopoly is no longer warranted and should be abandoned."

It called attention to an average expenditure of about $100,000,000 annually on inland waterways in the past few years, and found "no commensurate economic benefits."

The report, issued last night, was signed by Bernard M. Baruch, who succeeded the late Calvin Coolidge as chairman; by Clark Howell and Alexander Legge.

Attacks Firemen At Cigar Factory

Fire broke out in Altamere Brothers' factory on second floor of Servicer Building Tuesday Night—Fireman Hoffman Attacks.

Kingston fire department Tuesday night not only had to fight a fire in the cigar factory of the Altamere Brothers, Inc. on the second floor of the Servicer Building at Broadway and Pine Grove avenue, but also to overcome a faithful and fearless bulldog that is kept in the factory as a watchdog.

The factory is equipped with a sprinkler system and about 9 o'clock that evening fire broke out in a box containing excelsior in the storeroom of the factory where it was still smoldering when the fire department responded to a telephone call from a man who had been passing the factory and seen the smoke.

As soon as the fire became hot enough it started the sprinkler system working, which prevented what might have been a bad fire.

The fire department was aware of the fact that a watchdog was kept in the factory nights and when the doors to the factory were found locked and barred the firemen under the direction of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy lowered the fire escape on the outside of the building and ascended to the second floor.

There a pane of glass in one of the windows was broken and the firemen entered. They knew the dog was somewhere on the second floor and entered cautiously, flashing their flashlights here and there about the room they entered.

They saw the sparkle of the dog's eyes as the animal was backed up in one corner of the room. The dog never moved nor growled. Fireman John Hoffman, who was armed with a fire axe, said he would stand guard over the dog while his fellow firemen searched the other rooms to locate the fire.

As the firemen tiptoed cautiously into another room Fireman Hoffman saw the dog leaping at him, grasping by the back of the neck by the collar, and pinning the watchdog to the floor. The growl of the dog and Hoffman's call to his brother firemen were heard and the other firemen rushed back, expecting to see that Hoffman had been badly bitten.

Instead they found that Hoffman had the dog pinned to the floor. Uttering ropes the other firemen went to his assistance and soon had the faithful animal safely tied up.

Most of the damage to the factory was from water from the sprinkler system. Damage by fire was slight. Guesalido Altamere, president of the company, and his sons, Vincent and Salvatore, were out of town that night. The fire loss is covered by insurance held by a New York City insurance house.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF FAMOUS PAINTINGS RELEASED

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—After first having been adjudged "obscene" and detained for four days at the New York Customs House, a series of photographs of Michelangelo's famous frescoes on the ceiling of the Pope's Sistine chapel in the Vatican, have been released.

The pictures were consigned to Ernst Weyhe, New York book importer, who was notified upon arrival of the package that they would be destroyed. They were submitted, however, to Assistant Solicitor G. N. Brewer and he ordered their release at once.

Art historians say that hardly any pictures in the world are more famous than the frescoes that Michelangelo painted at the behest of Pope Julius II. The decorative scheme covers 10,000 square feet of the ceiling of the chapel and required four years to complete.

Noted Entertainers Japanese to Cease Will Appear For 14th Annual Charity Ball

Knights of Columbus is pleased to announce that a large variety of entertainers have been secured for the ball to be held at the new armory this Friday evening.

It is really an all-star program of Broadway favorites and leading the list of performers is the international comedian, Chas. Chase, featured in the Ziegfeld Follies, Ballyhoo, and Earl Carroll's Vanities. Then there is the great team of novelty artists, Gene Delaney and Lewis direct from the hit-in-theatre in the world, Radio City's Music Hall, Cecil Blain, the dancing sensation of Capitol Theatre, will portray the skill that has made this noted performer one of the leading artists on the stage today.

Belmont, Selma and Lena in "All for fun and fun for all" will please the patrons of the K. of C. ball with their hilarious and fun-provoking nonsense and should prove a decided hit with all those present. The Haines Brothers direct from Romy Theatre will also be on the bill, and the advance notices also tend to show that this team will make another hit with the audience at the ball at the new armory on Friday evening.

Many other acts will be on the program, and the public is indeed assured that they will see a program of Broadway artists that are among the best on the stage and radio today.

Frederick the Entertainer, the Paramount Broadcasters will render a concert composed of many of the leading hit tunes of today in a most novel and original arrangement, and the early comers at the ball will be due for a most pleasant surprise when they hear what the boys of this famous orchestra have to offer for the patrons at the K. of C. Ball.

The doors at the new armory will open at seven o'clock with concert to begin at eight, and entertainment will follow the concert at about 8:30. Tickets may be purchased at the door by those who have not already secured the same.

General Chairman Florian P. Whigert requests all of the chairmen of the various committees appointed for the 14th Annual Charity Ball to be held at the new armory this Friday evening, to meet at the Knights of Columbus building tonight at 8 o'clock in order to discuss the final plans which are necessary. It is especially important that all workers on the patron committee also meet with the general committee to make their report.

2,000 Jobless Ask Food and Money

Seattle, Feb. 15 (AP).—Two thousand and singing, jostling unemployed men, women and children took sleeping quarters for the night in the county-city building and vowed they would not leave until King county commissioners met their relief demands.

The group "camped" following a series of demonstrations in which the unemployed asked for: $12.50 worth of groceries per family per week.

Three days work weekly at $4.50 per day.

Or—5,000 gallons of gasoline and $40 cash per family for a "pilgrimage" to Olympia, where the state legislature is in session.

Their demands refused the demonstrators decided to remain in the official office building. They called for reinforcements, and other unemployed swarmed in.

They sang, played pinocle, slept, made speeches—but they stayed. A squad of police was placed on guard but the demonstrators remained peacefully and organized their own police force to maintain order.

The demonstrators included all varieties of the unemployed organizations, but observers said the majority seemed to belong to the "United Front" group, dressed here as the left wing of the Unemployed Citizens League, most powerful politically and numerically of such organizations.

Expected Withdrawal of Japan From League Looked For in Month—Tokyo Stock Exchange Closed For Slump

Tokyo, Feb. 15 (AP).—Japan served notice today that it has ceased negotiations with the League of Nations on the Manchurian dispute, but its expected withdrawal from the League membership was not looked for for about a month.

The Tokyo Stock Exchange was closed at noon today and the exchange of Osaka and Nara also were shut owing to a severe slump in prices due to indications of continuing anti-Japanese sentiment at Geneva.

It was learned on high authority that the government took withdrawal from the League would be the turning point in the dispute's history. Before the ultimate decision is made, the council of elder statesmen, the nation's most distinguished personages, the heads of branches of the imperial family, and all living ex-premiers will be summoned for consultation.

Yosuke Matsukawa, who has been Japan's special counsel during the long debate over Manchuria before the League, called the foreign office today requesting permission to leave Geneva soon and to return by way of the United States.

The foreign office said his request would be granted as soon as the league assembly disposes of the Manchurian question, which was expected to take place by February 25 at the latest.

No Official Mission.

Matsukawa would have no official mission in the United States, the foreign office said. It was known, however, that he intended to go to Washington, hoping to see Mr. Roosevelt or other leaders of the new administration shortly after the inauguration.

Although the league has left the door theoretically open to conciliation in the Sino-Japanese dispute, the foreign office announced Japan would have no further concessions to offer and would stand firmly by its determination to maintain the government of Manchukuo in the territories wrested from Chinese control.

The league report on Manchuria, in which it is proposed to reassess the principle of Chinese sovereignty in that territory and non-recognition of Manchukuo, will be met by a Japanese counter declaration.

There has been a steady slump in the stock market since the league crisis began developing in earnest. Averages have gone down 30 per cent since the first of the year.

A selling flood continued this morning, therefore the directors, during the noon recess, decided not to reopen the exchange in the afternoon, ostensibly to give brokers time to adjust their bookkeeping.

SHAW SAYS HE IS ONLY FIT FOR THE GRAVE

Aboard Steamship Empress of Britain between Hongkong and Shanghai, Feb. 15 (AP).—George Bernard Shaw said today he himself was only fit for the grave, in commenting upon the recent death of John Galsworthy, novelist and playwright.

It is ridiculous that Galsworthy should die first," the Irish dramatist said. "A man of my age has no right living; he is only fit for the grave."

"Saying that I said I would never set foot in America is ridiculous nonsense," Shaw remarked. "Any-way America always comes to me."

Michigan Banks Will Pay Part Of Balances Kingston Day Promises

Arranges To Make $25,000,000 Available To Depositors Tomorrow—Depositors Encouraged.

Detroit, Feb. 15 (AP).—Along with the second day of the extraordinary bank holiday proclaimed yesterday by Governor William A. Cullen, Michigan's $25,000,000 bank deposits were encouraged today by promises that part of their balances would become available by tomorrow.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Detroit, which remains open, is receiving millions of dollars that are being poured in from branches of the Federal Reserve System in Chicago and New York.

Forty million dollars was on hand today and the Detroit Clearing House Association arranged to make $25,000,000 available to depositors Thursday. That will permit customers to withdraw not in excess of five per cent of their balances for emergency purposes before the end of the eight day holiday.

It seemed a certainty that some such plan would be put into effect for the remainder of the state, although it was not determined whether it would be by gubernatorial proclamation or by voluntary action by the banks.

In a series of conferences last night, representative bankers urged upon Governor Cullen the issuance of a supplemental proclamation authorizing emergency withdrawals up to ten per cent of balances.

The governor, however, urged voluntary action. He said that "while my proclamation declaring a bank holiday was mandatory, it is not my disposition to prohibit any bank from making a sensible arrangement to permit withdrawals to meet family necessities or to allow the cashing of pay checks, and I believe many banks will do this."

He said conferences with bankers would resume today.

Meanwhile, the depositors whose $150,000,000 bank balances were tied up presented the situation philosophically. Confidence was expressed that the eight-day respite would permit a sound adjustment of the Union Guardian Trust Company's financial difficulties which precipitated the drastic action.

A similarity in names and difficulty of the public in distinguishing between the Union Guardian Trust Co., an investment concern, and ten trust companies and 20 banks of the Guardian-Detroit-Union Group, Inc., with an estimated $500,000,000 in deposits was given as a major reason for the general closing order.

No question was raised as to the stability of other Detroit institutions.

Bowers Matter to Be Heard Monday

Some time ago application was made by Corporation Counsel Flanagan for the appointment of a commission to hear the Bowers claim arising out of the taking of lands for improvement of the Boulevard within the city limits. At that time the application was opposed by Mr. Bowers who was represented by H. H. Flemming.

Monday before Supreme Court Judge John T. Louchman.

The improvement of the Boulevard is one of the relief projects which it is hoped will give employment to a large number of Kingston unemployed. Before the work can be commenced it is necessary to have a condemnation commission appointed in order that the city may begin steps to acquire all of the necessary land which is required under the proposed re-routing of the Boulevard. The plans as prepared call for the elimination of many of the present existing dangerous curves. This route calls for a change in the alignment near the city limits and for the taking of a tract of the Bowers property, practically dividing the property in two with the road running at what is now the rear of the house near where a large chicken coop stands. Mr. Bowers seriously objects to the taking.

TWO CASES AGAIN ADJOURNED IN POLICE COURT TODAY

Further adjournments were taken today in two cases that had been set down for hearings in police court this morning. In the case of David Ryan of New York, the hearing was adjourned for two weeks. Ryan is the man who swallowed poison tablets in police headquarters after his arrest on a charge of stealing jewelry from the room of William Van Ethen in a rooming house on St. James street. He was confined to the Kingston Hospital for some time and later was removed and taken to a hospital in New York. He furnished bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance here. The other adjourned case was that of Wilber Delaney, accused of passing a $20 counterfeit bill at the motor vehicle bureau. This case was adjourned for a week as Attorney Lord J. Forster, who was to prosecute the case, was unable to do so today as his wife was removed to a hospital.

Kingston Day Promises To Be Huge Success

Fair Crowd of Shoppers In Stores This Morning Despite the Unfavorable Weather—Many Out of Town People Arrive During Day—Torch Light Parade Held Tuesday Evening.

Kingston Day, the co-operative day of the Kingston merchants, promises to be a huge success. Everyone except the weather men apparently was counting on making the day a splendid one. Even though the day was forecast and in fact threatened during the morning hours, there was a fair crowd on the streets when the stores opened for the day and during the morning the number of shoppers increased.

The weather moderated during the night and this morning the ice which covered everything Tuesday morning has melted making travel less hazardous.

Stores which had advertised special offerings for Kingston Day were well patronized and several of the merchants expressed their appreciation of the business which was being done in spite of the threatening weather conditions.

Tuesday evening a torchlight parade was held, heralding the coming of Kingston Day. Headed by a band a number of cars and trucks from business places paraded from one end of the city to the other bringing to the attention of the public the fact that another co-operative sales day was to be held.

The sale was not confined to any one line of merchandise or to any section of the city but was city wide both as to type of merchandise being offered and stores participating.

Undoubtedly the road conditions prevented many people from participating in the sale during the early hours of the day, but later many out of town people were observed arriving in town and during the afternoon the attendance increased.

Tax Measures Face Lawmakers Today

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 15 (AP).—The legislature turned its attention today to taxation measures fixing the amount New Yorkers must drop into the state's official collection plate during the new fiscal year.

Most of the Lehman revenue bills have been completed within the last few hours for introduction at today's session. In the face of strenuous opposition from organized groups and a threat from one source of a "taxpayers' revolt," the lawmakers were prepared to consider new tax laws calling for a 1/4 of one per cent retail sales tax, a one per cent gross income tax and a one cent increase in the gasoline tax.

Another measure prepared for introduction today covered the Lehman proposal for lowered income tax exemptions.

Plans to introduce the bills today were made on the heels of the first outbreak in the legislature yesterday of inter-party dissension over the tax proposals.

Another development was the "warning" last night of Benjamin F. Sisson of Binghamton, who appeared before Republican assembly leaders as the spokesman for farmers, organized laborers and retail merchants in the southern tier counties.

"I warn you," Sisson told the leaders, "that a taxpayers' revolt is imminent."

Dr. Charles O'Reilly, the dentist, reported to the police department Tuesday that some time during the night a thief had stolen his brown suit from in front of the entrance to his office in the Broadway Theatre building. The sign was hung in a bracket and the words "Dr. O'Reilly Dentist" were engraved on the sign.

SEXY leaves of TURKISH tobacco are strong to dry and cure in the sun.

Well, that's something about cigarettes I never knew before the cigarette that's Milder

the cigarette that Tastes Better

I'd never thought much about what's inside a Chesterfield cigarette. But I have just been reading something that made me think about it. Just think of this, some of the tobaccos in Chesterfield—the Turkish—comes from 4000 miles away! And before it is shipped every single leaf is packed by hand. All because Turkish tobacco is so small and delicate. Of course I don't know much about making cigarettes, but I do know this—that Chesterfields are milder and have a very pleasing aroma and taste. They satisfy—and that's what counts with me!

Blouses to Suit Your Suit

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

Prints show with rough and plain creases in the first groups of blouses introduced in current displays in smart shops.

Rough crepe in melon shade is selected for a blouse featuring tucks in clusters radiating from the diaphragm yoke.

Rough crepe in pin stripes makes a type of blouse for suit wear.

Stronger Colors for Mid-winter Evenings.

New York—Shops are playing up strong colors in evening fashions, in sheer, semi-sheer and heavier crepes. At one, a number of purple evening gowns are displayed, with petal-like red shades introduced in trimming accents and they look very new, contrasting with the yellow and pale blue shades that have been observed. An uptown window display shows dinner dresses in royal blue crepe chiffon, the interest being concentrated in fabric and color rather than any particular type.

DID YOU KNOW THAT

One more evidence of the interest in things Edwardian is manifested in the revival of the taffeta petticoat or slip. It is an interest that is growing in formal fashions, and one that has already received approval.

Vells are repeatedly and diversely described as very important features of the new hats. Look vells with contrasting borders, as brown with beige, short vells with a wide variety of decorative designs, the sized vell, are all endorsed.

Evening Clothes Are Sheer and Bright

New York—Fashion is still cheerful for the red, white and blue, separately or in tricolor effects. Every so often it pleases her to try out the darker blues for evening. Here is a charming instance. Bright or navy blue both are advocated for evening for those who avoid black for any reason. There is certainly no reason for avoiding it, that is for style reasons. Black seems to be coming in again rather strongly, which is not strange considering how much color, and what brilliant colors we have worn for some time. Black now accents the style picture instead of being its background.

Some dressmakers are featuring regal-looking purples for evening and combining them with more brilliant tones—Fuchsin, pinks and such, serving as an inspiration.

The response to sheer materials has been enormous. Women of all ages seem to be attracted to the idea of semi-transparent. If not entirely transparent fabrics, chiffon is swept into favor and not prints, unless one wishes it that way. The spring and summer naturally bring prints into the foreground, and again new ones but they are no longer a must. Plain fabrics when sheer, are chic, especially when mounted on, or worn over tulle.

That satins have gathered momentum is also good to know. Women seem to like satin especially under the electric light. It is best to be brilliant then, so sparkles and rhinestones and other sparkling things are coming to the fore. Chanel is held responsible for the rhinestone jewelry, or ornament effects seen so much these nights. They are worn in the collar or on the collar of evening wraps, or anywhere for that matter where they are appreciated not as imitation diamonds, but as rhinestones. The brief, very bright evening jacket, known as the cocktail jacket, retains its place, and is more popular than ever now that it is fashionable to cover one's shoulders and neck even when dancing.

NAVY BY WAY OF CHANGE

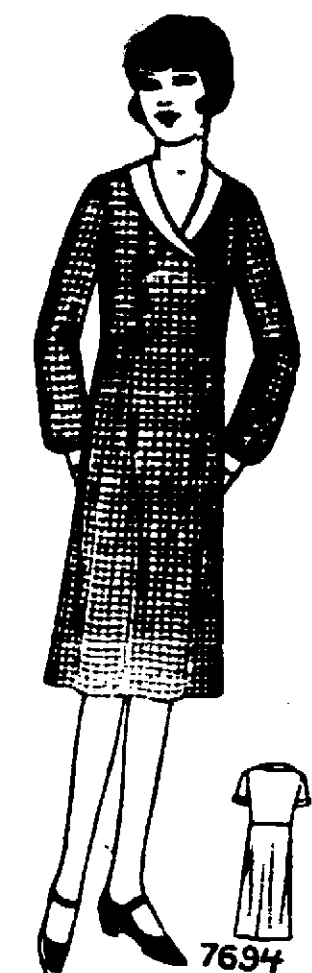

Copyright, 1933, by Fairchild

Navy blue chiffon with a softly draped bertha makes an evening frock. Wide navy taffeta ribbon forms a hemline border and a bow at the front of the waistline.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

7694

A Pleasing Model for a School Frock 7694. Checked gingham in brown and white, with facings of white pique is pictured here. One could have this in wool crepe or in velvet. It is also suggested for cotton tweeds. The raised waistline is indicated and the sleeve may be in wrist length—finished with a band cuff as in the large view or in short length as in the small back view. A small collar in shawl style outlines the V neck. The fronts are lapped at the closing in double breasted effect.

Designed in 5 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 if made as in the large view will require 2 1/2 yards of 35 inch material together with 1/2 yard of contrasting material for collar and cuffs. If made in monotone and with long sleeves, it will require 2 1/2 yards. With short sleeves and in monotone 2 yards will be required.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fishing For Pickeral

Shokan, Feb. 15—Local employees of the Department of Water Supply enjoyed a holiday on Monday. Some of the boys went fishing for pickeral. Hazzie Wager being one of those who journeyed to Wittenberg for that purpose. Several more days of cold weather are needed before the ice on the reservoir is thick enough to warrant good pickeral fishing. The prevailing winds of the past two weeks have made the water so choppy that the ice on the east basin, which is the best winter fishing grounds, is only about four inches thick at a distance from the shore line.

IRRITATING COUGHS DRAIN YOUR ENERGY AND MAKE YOU MORE SUSCEPTIBLE TO DANGEROUS GERMS

You can't be too careful these winter days when disease is so prevalent. So don't let your system get into a run-down condition because of a mean irritating cough. Do something about it today. Get a bottle of STOP KOF and enjoy the swift and soothing relief that this new quick-acting preparation brings.

The formula of this astonishingly effective remedy represents the active constituents of white pine, wild cherry, balm-of-gilead buds, blood root, sassafras, yerbena santa and eucalyptus compounded into a syrup with sugar and honey.

STOP KOF was instantly to loosen the greenish phlegm and clear the congested air passages, at the same time soothing the inflamed membranes in the throat. It is pleasant-tasting—children like it—and it is entirely harmless and free from narcotics. It won't upset the stomach or nervous system.

You have no idea how quickly and surely coughs, colds and bronchitis are relieved after taking a teaspoonful or two of STOP KOF. Get a bottle today at your drug store and see for yourself how effective it is.

College Women Met Tuesday Evening

The College Women's Club held its February meeting Tuesday evening. As the president was otherwise engaged, Miss Agnes Smith presided while Miss Martha Gold served as secretary in the absence of Miss Julia Cook. Three new members were accepted, Miss Mary Bott, B. A., New York State College for Teachers, Mrs. W. J. Clark, B. S., University of Vermont, and Mrs. Clifford Rose, B. A., Wellesley College. Mrs. Gerard Betz was elected treasurer to complete the unexpired term of Mrs. J. A. McCommons who tendered her resignation. It was also announced that the speaker for the April meeting will be Miss Beulah Bailey of Albany.

At the conclusion of the business meeting Miss Ethel Mauterstock announced the program for the evening. As it is customary for the February meeting to be a display of home talent the entertainment was by club members themselves. Miss Laura Bailey, soprano, gave three numbers, "Sylvia", "A Dream" and "In the Luxembourg Gardens." She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Ethel Mauterstock. Mrs. Florence Cuddeback, although she is not a member of the club, helped make the evening a pleasurable one by giving two violin solos, "Gavotte" by Gossec, and Schubert's "Serenade." She was accompanied by Miss Marion Messinger. Miss Bailey then gave two other selections, "Smilin' Through" and "The Nightingale Has a Lyre of Gold."

The climax of the evening was a one-act play, "For Distinguished Service," by Florence Knox. It is a sophisticated piece dealing with the lives of two women of the smart set. Mrs. Harding, broad-minded in the matters of marriage, advises her friend, Katherine Burton, to continue an affair with a married man, not knowing that the man is her own husband. She discovers the truth just in time to retrieve her husband's affection. The interest of the play lies in the unusual development of the plot, with its keen insight into character, and the cleverness of the dialogue. The cast was Miss Madeline Tarrant who played the part of Katherine Burton, Mrs. Joseph McNeill as Mrs. Jim Harding, and Miss Dorothy Brooks as Mary, the maid. As all the players are actresses of experience, the production was done with just the right touch and feeling with nothing of the amateur about it.

The meeting concluded with a social hour and refreshments. The hostesses were Mrs. Barnard Joy, chairman, assisted by Miss Marion Healey, Miss Mary Hubbard, Mrs. Hubert Hoderath, Miss Bela Hyman, Mrs. Felix Katz, Mrs. Albert Kurdt and Mrs. Albert Kuhlmann. The entertainment committee was Miss Madeline Tarrant, chairman, Miss Ethel Mauterstock, and Miss Laura Bailey.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Feb. 15.—Mrs. George Hoffman and son, Leslie, and Mrs. Mosley Hoffman and son, George, spent Friday in Kingston.

The Young People's Society of High Falls and Allgerville held an oyster stew supper in the basement of the Reformed Church on Friday evening, February 10, which was well attended and proved both a social and financial success. There were outside guests present from Allgerville, Stone Ridge and Accord. About $17 was cleared. The society wishes to thank all those who attended and also all who in any way helped to make this supper a success.

The Young People's Society held a service in the Reformed Church on Sunday evening. Clarence Howard had charge of the service in the Reformed Church on Sunday morning, and there was a fair congregation present. At Sunday school, although there was not a large attendance, every member was present in Mrs. Mosley Hoffman's class.

Mrs. John Van Wageningen and son, Oscar spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Mosley Hoffman. Oscar has successfully completed his first term of his second year at R. P. I.

Miss Harriet Church of Freeport, Long Island, accompanied by her friend, Miss Dorothy Batcheller, also spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Church.

Warren Coutant is visiting at the home of his niece, Mrs. LeRoy Krom.

Miss Alice Krom of Brooklyn spent the week-end and holiday at her home here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hoffman and son, Leslie, spent Sunday evening in New Paltz.

Miss Jennie Sheeley of Brooklyn spent the week-end and holiday with her mother, Mrs. S. E. Sheeley, and brother, James.

Mrs. Jack Liddle called on Mrs. Rufus Markle on Sunday afternoon. There are quite a few lambs now on the farm of John H. Ayers.

The weather has been extremely cold for a few days. On Sunday morning the thermometer took quite a drop and people concluded the groundhog had surely gone back for a six weeks' sleep. On Monday, however, it started to moderate.

There was no school here on Monday as it was the day on which Lincoln's Birthday was observed. The Misses Ruth and Elizabeth Dumond of Kingston came out on Friday evening to attend the Young People's supper held in the Reformed Church, and were the guests of the Misses Kathryn and Margaret Steen.

Four Below at Shokan

Shokan, Feb. 15—Thermometers in the village center registered four below zero on Saturday and Sunday mornings. So intense was the cold over the week-end that even the swiftly running mountain brooks were frozen over.

"Stocking bills were ruining me"

Now Miss Cordelia Gurnee cuts down stocking bills... try her easy 2-minute way!

"All my spare cash used to go for stockings. Sometimes I'd get a run, sometimes they'd go at the heel or toe."

"One day a saleswoman suggested washing stockings with Lux. 'It saves the elasticity of the silk so it stands a lot more strain, gives much better wear,' she said. I took her advice and, actually, my stocking bills are half what they used to be. Stockings give me twice as good wear."

Cordelia Gurnee
New York City

YOU, TOO, can avoid needless stocking runs and holes—save money on stockings. Simply wash stockings in Lux suds each night. Lux saves the elasticity of silk, so it gives instead of breaking under strain.

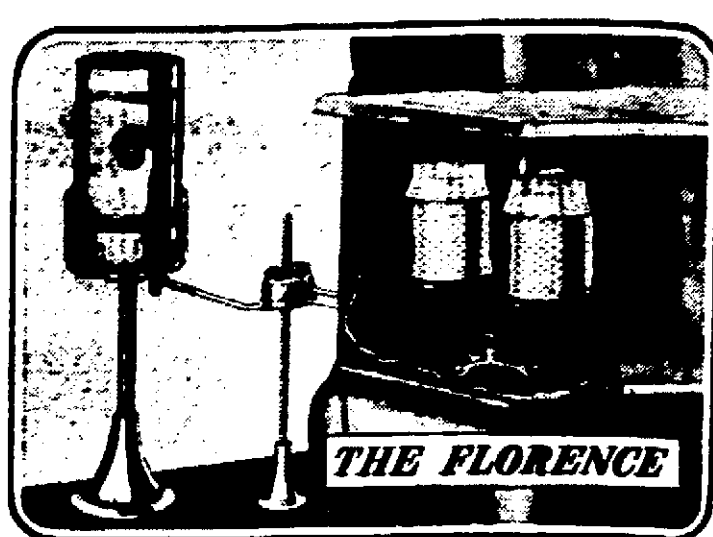

This easy Lux way takes only 2 minutes. Try it tonight—every night!

Mrs. R. Hughes washed 665 pairs with one box of Lux. Lux gave further. It is so pure—no salt!

SCHOOL ENJOYS A VALENTINE PARTY

On Feb. 13—The Tuesday afternoon of the school pupils of the school enjoyed a St. Valentine's party at the schoolhouse. Each child brought with a plate, cup, saucer and glass and these accessories were put to good use in disposing of the cake, ice cream and coffee furnished by the teacher, Mrs. Lena Burgher. There was plenty of lollypops too and what with all these delicious refreshments together with the games which were played and the valentines that passed in exchange, the afternoon passed pleasantly enough. Tuesday's party was but one of the many enjoyable affairs which Mrs. Burgher has arranged for her pupils during the time that she has served the school as teacher.

WORLD OF

By QUINCY JAMES

Monaco, principally on the Mediterranean, has issued a series of 20 stamps that range from 15 to 96 centims and from 1 franc 25 centimes to 5 francs. Two postage-due values are included.

Scots reached this country ahead of stamped descriptions, but pictures of buildings and town views, some with the sea in the background, predominate. A portrait of Louis II, prince of Monaco, appears on four of the values.

Incidentally, Monte Carlo is neither the largest town nor the capital of the principality.

Above the Clouds

A striking design, containing more than a hint of modernism, appears on an air express stamp just issued by Italy. It shows an airplane flying above a cloud bank, with sun rays penetrating from the background. Its value is 2.25 lire.

In Fascist land, by the way, the government not only handles stamps and advertising them—and apparently finds it good business. While the government as a whole is running at a deficit, its "stamp bureau," or office for the sale of Italian stamps of interest to collectors, continues to show a profit.

Director of the office, Comen-dante Blean, an expert philatelist, handles newspaper advertisements and the with those from department stores and automobile dealers. And he has published an 87-page catalogue listing the varieties handled.

Marjandale is in love with you,
Doris? Has he told you so?
Daughter—No, Mother Dear, but you should see the way he looks at me when I'm not looking at him.

"When bacon was selling at 45 cents a pound I couldn't get along without it," declared old Ragson Tacklers, from Drushville, "but now that it is cheap I find fresh side meat is pretty good."

The only way, muses Gushing Gladys, to get some boys to "love the ground you walk on," is to make them feel like "the dirt under your feet."

Son—Mother, today you will look upon my face for the last time.
Mother—What? You would leave home forever?
Son—No, mother, I'm going to raise a beard.

The bonds of matrimony are like that, too. Keeping up the interest is what preserves their value.

Gertrude—Marry me, Richard.
I'm only a garbage man's daughter.
Richard—That's all right baby, you ain't to be sniffed at.

The shoe clerk is one man who doesn't agree that woman are trying to fill men's shoes.

Two heads are better than one—especially, muses giggling Gertrude, when they are both on one pair of shoulders.

Written Hash—Children are creatures who disgrace you by exhibiting in public the example you set them at home. . . . A farmer out near Brushville lost his dinner last Sunday when a truck struck his only chicken.

The man who flees from the burden of responsibility is simply running away from success. . . . Vaudeville is 100 years old and some of the jokes seem good for another century.

The amateur calls it a "chance shot" when he hits what he's aiming at. . . . A single man scoffs at mind readers. But later there are times when he thinks he's married to one.

In times like these it must take a lot of courage to be a bigamist. . . .
When you cannot please everybody it's a good idea to try to please those who are worth pleasing. . . . The cat may not catch so many of the mice, but if she stays on the job, they are much less troublesome. . . . The well-known stork, too, seems to have a faultry distribution system. . . . When you hear of one lawyer suing another it will be plenty of time to hire one.

The man who has the most to say about it doesn't talk until everybody else gets through.

Today

Kingston: "Blonde Venus." A story of mother love and mother sacrifice with Marlene Dietrich shorn of her exotic personality except in a few scenes. Herbert Marshall as the husband steals the show with some excellent acting, and little Dickie
Moore is perfect as the child.

Orpheum: "Forbidden Company" and "South Sea Adventurer." Josephine Dunn, Sally Blane, John Darrow, Bryant Washburn, John St.
Polls and Myrtle Stedman are among the featured players in the first talkie, while Zane Grey, writer and traveler, explains and takes you to some interesting spots in the South Seas.

Broadway: "The Air Hostess."
Evelyn Knapp is the featured player in this melodrama of the skies.
There is action coupled with thrills in this talkie.

Tomorrow

Kingston: Same.

Orpheum: Same.

Broadway: "Hearts of Humanity."

A play that concerns a widower who takes the difficult task of bringing up a motherless child. This talkie is filled with tears and sadness from beginning to end, plus some capable dramatizing by Jackie Searl, Jean Herholt, Claudia Dell, and J. Farrell MacDonald.

SHOGAN

Shogan, Feb. 14.—William Bell of Newburgh was a business caller in Shogan Monday morning.

George Berry, bustling insurance collector of West Hurley was numbered among the out of town folks seen here Monday.

William Turens bought a horse in Kingston recently but had to return the animal after a short trial before the wagon. The spirited beast came pretty close to kicking Eddie Levey's wagon to pieces, and even Fred Weeks, an old hand with frisky horses, was unable to tame the animal. "Billie" was acquired by Mr.
Turens, who has a large farm in the west end of the village, expects to make another venture into the horse buying field within a few days.

Three county snow plows and two grave trucks were busy in the village center and at other points along the north boulevard on Sunday. The boys had scraped the pavement clear of snow following the storm of Friday, and their second trip was for the purpose of pushing the snow off the shoulders of the road.

On Friday, February 14, 1933, the funeral took place at the Tabor M. E.
Church of Mrs. Alonzo Trowbridge of The Vix, who had died on the 10th. Interment was in the cemetery at Tabor. Mrs. Trowbridge was the mother of Jason, Anna and Hazel Trowbridge. She was a sister of Mrs. Virgil Shurtler of Samsomville.

Bert Winchell, one of the better woodsmen of the reservoir section, is chopping for Elmer Bedell on one of the Bogart woodlots near Tabor.
Tenerick maintains.

Seven members of the Reformed Church Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Jennie Green last Thursday to prepare a quilt for the annual summer fair of the society.

John J. Every of Saugerties and Arnold Dickinson of Poughkeepsie were included among the business callers in the hub of the reservoir country on Monday.

Francis Quick of Mombass is sojourning at the home in the village of Mrs. Bertha Constable.

The news, as published in The Freeman recently, that the old U. S.
& D. R. R. now a part of the Central System, is again "out of the red" is pleasing to many Olive residents who recall the great benefits which have accrued to the town in former years as a result of this local means of transportation. This long association of town and railroad dates back to post-Civil War days, when Olive and other towns were bonded in order to help bring the road up the Esopus valley.

Clayton Burgher and William Jordan, well known farmers of the west side of the reservoir, were callers here Sunday.

The older residents of this section were sorry to read of the accident which befell William Dibble of Port Jervis, who was severely injured as a result of being struck by a car last Friday morning. Mr. Dibble was born and brought up in Shogan and for many years was engaged in the carpentering and mill-wright business here.

Edward Hershenroeder of New York city spent the holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hershen-roeder, of the mountain road.

Hazle Wager has invested in a fine pair of raccoons and is planning to go in for coon raising as a side line. "Haz" is known as a versatile chap and doubtless he will accommodate his talents profitably to the new and novel venture.

What with the presence of the snow plow crews and several other out of town patrons, the corner restaurant was a busy place last Sunday. Mrs. Winchell's square meals are favorably known among epicures for miles around and the fame of her home cookery extends even to the metropolis and beyond.

Walter Davenport, one of Rich-Falls' hustling young business men, was seen here one day recently.

On February 14, 1895, the Olive Town School Association met in convention in the Shogan Reformed Church. Among those taking part in the afternoon session were: Irving P. Winne, the Rev.
George Niemeyer and the Rev. Carvin Case. Miss Ella Lockwood reported the Boiceville union school, organized May 6, 1894, in a flourishing condition with an average attendance of 30; also that a concert had been held in the schoolhouse by the members a short time previously. Miss Lily Patchin was superintendent of the Boiceville school at that time. Hugh Donahue, veteran Sunday school worker of the western part of the town, reported an average attendance of 45 at the Krumville school and that several of the members had united with the church recently. Only four of the fifteen schools in the town presented reports at the convention, due to the impassable roads at the time. At the evening session addresses were made by Milton Nichols, head of the High Point school; the Rev. Harry Corford, pastor of the Shogan M. E.
Church; George M. Everett, of the
M. E. school here; the Rev. Calvin
Case of Brodhead; Dewitt C. Davis of the Reformed school and the Rev.
Paul R. Gott, pastor of the west side Baptist Church.

Shogan people are duly proud of the part played by the local troop of Boy Scouts at the second annual country Scouts rally held at the armory in Kingston last Saturday.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Received stability appeared in the financial markets today, after yesterday's setback. Stocks, bonds and in the commodities, wheat, actually showed intervals of firmness. Progress in securities was meager, however, and the stock market turned rather sporty after midday, with tobacco and utilities encountering some selling. Reports of progress in dealing with the Michigan banking situation were encouraging, and steel trade reviews were distinctly optimistic. There was a tendency in Wall Street to reserve decision on the National Transportation Committee report.

Ordering of American Telephone's regular dividend had been expected, and that stock lost an early fractional gain. In the utilities, Public Serv-

Fix Return for League Dairymen

New York, Feb. 15.—Members of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association, Inc., will receive payment for January milk figured on a basic return of 97 cents per 100 pounds, net pool price, at the 201-210 mile zone. It was announced at league headquarters today.

In many places the members of the association will have from six to twelve cents per 100 pounds added to their basic net pool return by the volume differential. This differential is paid to producers delivering to certain plants where the producers have carried out a program to increase the volume of milk handled in the plant thus making overhead and other savings that accrue to their benefit. This differential is now being paid to producers delivering to approximately 110 different plants.

General Motors and Chrysler gained small fractions. The sugar stocks were again firm. In the railroads, Pennsylvania rose a fraction, while Union Pacific eased a little. U. S. Steel was steady. Gold mining issues were quiet.

Railroad presidents and insurance heads said they had not yet had time to study the report of the National Transportation Committee, and withheld comment. Such informal discussions as developed in Wall Street, however, indicated that the financial community was more or less in sympathy with the committee's statements on the necessity of scaling down unwieldy and obsolete capital structures. Also, the committee's recommendation that the government abandon fostering of competition by supporting such competing services as waterways at public expense was applauded in a number of quarters.

While some professional traders were inclined to be bearish, a considerable amount of encouragement was expressed over the action of the market, in view not only of the Michigan situation, but a decided setback in London, where Far Eastern issues dropped sharply, after the suspension of trading in the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

EXPEDITION FINDS STONE AGE VILLAGE

Persia Yields Two Most Remarkable Discoveries.

Chicago.—Two chapters in the epic of human advance over a span of nearly four thousand years from the remote Stone Age to the magnificence of Persia have been dramatically revealed by discoveries of the Persian expedition of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, which have just been reported to Director James Henry Breasted by Dr. Franz Herzfeld, field director of the expedition.

At Persepolis, the Versailles of ancient Persia, the institute expedition has discovered some of the most magnificent sculptures ever uncovered by archaeology. Within two miles of the ruins of the ancient palace to which Alexander the Great in 330 B. C. set the torch during a drunken debacle, Doctor Herzfeld has found a Stone Age village of approximately 4000 B. C. in a state of preservation surpassing any such discovery heretofore made.

"The discovery at Persepolis is one of the greatest and most important in the history of archaeological research," Doctor Breasted said. "It not only far surpasses any archaeological discovery ever made in the history of such research in Persia, but there has never been any discovery like it anywhere in western Asia since archaeological excavation began there almost a century ago."

Wall Sculptures

Doctor Herzfeld has uncovered a series of wall sculptures which, if set together, would form a vast panel of reliefs five or six feet in height, and almost a thousand feet in length. The carvings include a series of historical inscriptions of the greatest historical importance.

The walls of magnificent palaces which stood on the gigantic terrace of Persepolis, overlooking a mighty plain encircled by mountains, were of sun-dried brick. But the colonnaded halls, the windows, and the great doors were done in black stone which was polished like ebony.

The sculptures were done here and there on this black stone. Those discovered by Doctor Herzfeld depict a magnificent durbur, or concourse, of a great group of Persian and Median officials standing with the brilliantly uniformed palace guards of the Persians, an emperor drawn up at one side to receive the ambassadors of twenty-two subject nations who approach from the other side bearing their tribute to Persia.

The execution of the scenes, Doctor Herzfeld reports, displays unparalleled beauty and refinement of detail.

It was the disintegration and fall of the great mud-brick walls that preserved the newly discovered sculptures, and protected them from the ravages of weather and vandalism through the nearly two thousand five hundred years since they were created. The carvings are as fresh as the day when the sculptors' chisels touched them for the last time. No other works of old Persian art have ever been found in such perfect preservation.

Stone Age Village

Doctor Herzfeld found the Stone Age village beneath a small mound some three hundred by six hundred feet in area and only ten or twelve feet in height, within two miles of the ruins of the great palaces.

The walls of the adobe houses are preserved in places to a height of six or seven feet. There is a narrow street or alley extending the length of the little settlement, and a modern visitor walking along it can look over into the houses. Through the doors and the earliest known windows ever found, he can see mural decorations of red ochre water color still discernible on the walls.

Standing about on the floors are household utensils of pottery, fireplaces with burned clay fire-dogs still in position, and pottery vessels still containing the remains of food, especially the bones of probably domesticated animals. In some of the dishes lay the flint knives with which the ancient people had last eaten some six thousand years ago.

"Such remains," Doctor Breasted said, "disclose to us the earliest prehistoric ancestry of the civilization which reached its culmination in the palaces of Persepolis. The evidences of the intervening evolution are plentifully preserved all-around Persepolis."

He returned with his seven-month-old daughter, asking Sgt. David Perry to keep the infant as bail during the night. Perry ordered two patrolmen to return the baby to Peterson's home and locked the man up.

Soviet May Buy 3,000 Tons of Greek Tobacco

Athens.—Greek tobacco raisers, who have been hard hit this year by the drop in American sales, have had their hopes raised by inquiries from the Soviet government about the possibility of purchasing 3,000 tons of cheap oriental tobacco. The question of payment is the chief difficulty in the way of selling tobacco to the Soviets.

Rich or Poor

By MARY GOULD

BUT Vivian, you must have known, all along, that I wanted to marry you!

Fred raised troubled eyes to the small, slender girl.

"Well," Vivian countered, "what if I did? And of course I did think—But you never said anything—and now this has just swept me off my feet. Fred, can't you understand?"

"Understand?" Fred's eyes were angry now. "Of course I understand. Here I am, a poor young man. But I'm good enough till this rich old fellow comes along and—"

"That's not fair, Fred, and you know it. I love Thorley Morehouse. If he didn't have a penny I'd still want to marry him."

"I'm sorry, Vivian. It sounds rotten. But you see how it looks. You and I've known each other for months and batted around together and I thought it was all settled."

Vivian's hard dignity left her. "Fred, I'm awfully sorry," she said. "I thought so, too, honestly. I did—do—like you. And I didn't meet Thorley until last month. And I'm refusing you because I hope he'll ask me to marry him. It's my fault."

"You're right, of course, Vivian. It's just my hard luck. Well, I'll have to run along now."

As the hall door of her small apartment shut behind Fred, Vivian sank down in a big, cushioned wicker chair. She forced back the tears and looked about her cheerful, comfortable little living room. A great vase of Thorley's roses—the outstanding thing in the room. But the real room with its charm and its comfort had been there before she knew there was a Thorley Morehouse in the world—excepting as she had heard of the big brokerage house of Morehouse and Morehouse.

But she had met Thorley—she'd been sent to get a story from his brother's wife on how the women of Russia were meeting their new responsibilities. Thorley's brother had been doing some investigating in Russia, and the Star, on which Vivian was a reporter, had given her the assignment. She hadn't got the story. Mrs. Jack Morehouse wouldn't talk. And Thorley, who lived with them, had walked in on them chatting over tea and cinnamon toast.

That was the end of things—or the beginning—for Vivian. Thorley was forty-five—not an impressively old man to Vivian's twenty-five years, though Fred seemed to think so. He was coming to see her tonight and Vivian knew the message he was bringing.

A bell rang. Vivian opened the door into the hall and waited, listening to firm, running steps coming up the stairs.

"Hello, Vivian," said Thorley, as he came, with a breath of the cold outdoors, into the warm little room. "Thank you for the roses," he said stiffly.

"Oh!" Some of the youth had gone from Thorley's voice. "Were they all right? Color and everything?"

"Lovely," said Vivian. "They're in the kitchenette. It seemed warm here."

"Oh," said Thorley again. "Well, Vivian, I suppose you know why I've come tonight?" He took her cold hands in his firm warm ones. But he did not try to keep them when she drew them away. "I know I'm not good enough, Vivian—too old, and all that. But I adore you. When I was a youngster there was a girl I liked a lot—but she turned me down because I was poor. And there's never been anybody else, Vivian."

"Because you were poor, Thorley? How despicable. But—I'm sorry, Thorley, I can't."

Fifteen minutes later Vivian sat alone again in her room. She'd given herself five minutes more—the last she'd ever let herself think of Thorley. Then she'd telephone Fred.

The telephone rang. The Star office. One of the young reporters. Had she heard the news? Another big crash. Morehouse and Morehouse had gone under. Thought she'd like a chance to come down and write up a good story of that Mrs. Jack Morehouse she interviewed the other day.

"Is Mr. Morehouse poor now?" asked Vivian. "Then I'm through—I mean, I'm resigning. Tell the boss, Good-by. And as quickly as she could she got Thorley's house on the telephone. His voice, after a minute of waiting.

"Oh, Thorley," she said. "You're poor. And I'm so glad. Come back, Thorley, as fast as you can. I want to tell you why I said I couldn't marry you and tell you why now I can."

To Vivian, the things she said made sense. To Thorley, it didn't matter that they didn't. He was with her in ten minutes.

"But, Vivian," he said, as he held her, sobbing in his arms. "I don't know what you mean. But I don't care. I'm not poor, Vivian. But does that matter? It doesn't really matter. Money isn't what matters."

As Vivian whispered out her story, the telephone rang again. The Star office. Sorry, but that was a wild rumor they telephoned her before. It was Millhouse and company that had gone under.

Vivian went back to Thorley. "Thorley, I love you," she said. "I can't help it, whether you're rich or poor."

Dragon Fly Is Harmless

Does Not Carry Stinger

The dragon fly, or darned needle as it is commonly called, fortunately can not live up to either of the superstitions which have been built up about it. It is a writer in the Washington Star. It is supposed by children to be able to sew up the ears or to sting. The first belief is absurd on the face of it, but many adults believe it can sting. However, as it has no stinger, it cannot harm humans in any way.

The dragon fly feeds on insects which it catches on the fly and holds secure with its strong biting jaws.

The dragon fly lays its eggs on still water and the larvae live in the water, feeding upon insects and tiny fish. When it arrives at maturity, the larva crawls up on the bank, the shell breaks open and the adult fly emerges.

Age No Barrier in Jungle Wedding

When the circus office opened this morning an elderly lady of 71 years and a gray-whiskered old fellow of 71 were waiting at the door and anxiously inquired, "Is this the place where you get married in a jungle?" The old lady, who claimed she was the grandmother of 11 children, was rather disappointed when she was told she would have to submit an application and have it passed upon by a committee of the volunteer men. This elderly couple are nearby neighbors, living about ten miles out of town, and decided this was their chance to unite in the bonds of matrimony.

The jungle wedding, the first one in the history of Kingston, is attracting widespread comment, as an application was received from a young couple living north of Catskill inquiring as to what the qualifications should be. The younger set of the city also seem to be interested as three more young couples have expressed a desire to participate in this strange ceremony.

Arrangements were made with the local papers today for an event that will long be remembered by youngsters who deliver the daily news to your door. They will be the guests of the volunteer firemen and the Robinson Bros. Circus at the official opening Monday evening. Monday afternoon at the four o'clock school children are expected to attend, the kiddies from the various institutions will be the guests of the management and will, no doubt, be given some peanuts and pink lemonade to give them an afternoon long to be remembered.

Eighty children receive supplementary milk feedings every day. Every Friday morning from 8:45 to 9 o'clock the Seventh Grade Home Room Club meets. The officers recently elected are: President, Robert Lasher; secretary, Thelma Winfield; song leader, Grace Mauterstock; program committee, Grace Mauterstock. Esther Clearwater, Charles Collis and Charles Rosenfeld.

In the fifth grade and the sixth the boys are making a library and the girls are painting screens and others doing handwork. In the English class they have been studying about Whittier. The librarian of the fifth grade, Kenneth Snyder, and the supervisor, Miss MacFarlane, have arranged things so the students have book reports. The fifth grade has also been working on fur-bearing animals and the art class will make pictures of fur-bearing animals. In the science class they have been studying the beaver, bear, mink, weasel and ermine.

The second grade is studying about Denmark. In the third grade the children are studying about the different kinds of communication, or the way people get in touch with one another. They have studied sign language, picture language and signaling. They have written with picture language and are now learning to use water colors.

The Fourth Grade A is having slides about two boys in old Egypt. The slides came from the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The four A is also learning to make puppets. The Four B has been making dolls of all races. Some in this grade are working on a Greek play called "Medusa's Head."

Twenty children have had their teeth put in proper condition. This was made possible through the cooperation of the Exchange Club and Dr. Henry of New Paltz. There are 450 pupils enrolled in the Training School. About 250 come by bus each day. About 250 boys and girls bring lunches at noon.

Abram E. Jansen, Mrs. Lanetta Dikkers and Mrs. Hene Compton have generously supplied apples to the lunches of the children.

ULSTER COUNTY MAN
CLAIMS SURVEYOR HONOR

When the New York State Society of Professional Engineers met in Albany last week, the members lauded C. Eugene Bentley of Jamestown as oldest active surveyor in the United States.

But today another county was heard from. David H. Merritt of Highland writes the Albany Evening News, claiming the distinction by a margin of about 15 years over Mr. Bentley, who began his work in 1849. Mr. Merritt says he was surveying as far back as 1871.

"I am in my 85th year," he wrote, "but take an active part in surveys at the present time. I have made a tax map of the town of Lloyd, Ulster county, which is filed in the Tax Department in Albany."

"I have not written this to detract from the honor of Mr. Bentley, but simply as a historical fact."

"You can find records in the state engineer's office at Albany of surveys of water grants made by me in 1871-1872. The grants were Kur water grant in the town of Marlborough, Ulster county, and the Clearwater Company grant in the town of Lloyd."

Next to the heating of your home
HOT WATER is your most important Comfort

COMPLETE cleanliness for the home and for the person requires hot water, more hot water, and still more hot water! Yet strangely enough, there are homes in this city which have many other modern features, but lack this most important one.

It is no longer necessary to put up with the frequent inconveniences of hot water that must be heated each time it is needed, nor to spend minutes, adding up to hours, waiting for water to heat. The plain fact is that it costs only a few pennies per day to have water hot constantly on tap.
A generous supply always ready. Automatic water heating is simple to install and inexpensive to enjoy. Before you resign yourself to doing without it another day, see your plumber or home appliance merchant and get the facts about automatic water heating.
